Nashville Opera Association, one of the fastest growing opera companies in the nation, produces four spectacular operas with national and international stars each season. The outreach program to schools, OperaNET, has reached over 79,000 children since its inception. The Mary Ragland Young Artist Program attracts promising young singers by casting them mainstage roles, one of only three such programs in the country to do so. All opera performances at TPAC include projected English translations so audiences can get every word.
